Enigma of Evil

Adam Brown

Was that your voice
That spoke the Word?
Was that your ear that listened?

Was that your hand
That took the watch
While others wiped away tears?

Was that your arm
That carried the child
From one to the other side?

Was that your nose
Inhaling smoke
As you carried bags of food?

Was that your pen
That signed the form
As trains moved back and forth?

Was that your eye
That watched the writhing
As you flinched before the pit?

Was that your smile
That greeted travellers
On the march towards their death?

Were they your lips
That kissed your children
As they slept before the fire?
