A Companion to Celebrity
A Companion to Celebrity

Edited by
P. David Marshall and Sean Redmond
David Marshall:
To my loving wife Sally

Sean Redmond:

Chow Mo-wan: In the old days, if someone had a secret they didn’t want to share…you know what they did?
Ah Ping: I have no idea.
Chow Mo-wan: They went up a mountain, found a tree, carved a hole in it, and whispered the secret into the hole. Then they covered it with mud and left the secret there forever.

From In the Mood for Love (dir. Wong Kar-wai, 2000)

To my beautiful starry eyed children, Josh, Caitlin, Erin, Dylan and Cael
Contents

List of Figures and Tables x
Notes on Contributors xiii
Acknowledgments xix

1 Introduction
  P. David Marshall and Sean Redmond 1

Part One  The Genealogy of Celebrity
  Introduction
  P. David Marshall 15

2 The Moral Concept of Celebrity: A Very Short History Told as a Sequence of Brief Lives
  Fred Inglis 21

3 Brand Names: A Brief History of Literary Celebrity
  Loren Glass 39

4 The Changing Face of Celebrity and the Emergence of Motion Picture Stardom
  Gaylyn Studlar 58

Part Two  The Publics of Celebrity
  Introduction
  Sean Redmond 79

5 Celebrity, Participation, and the Public
  Graeme Turner 83

6 Celebrity, Convergence, and the Fate of Media Institutions
  Nick Couldry 98
Contents

7 Barack Obama, Media Spectacle, and Celebrity Politics 114
   Douglas Kellner

8 Construction of the Public Memory of Celebrities: Celebrity Museums in Japan 135
   Saeko Ishita

Part Three  Celebrity Value
   Introduction 155
   P. David Marshall

9 Hope Springs Eternal? The Illusions and Disillusions of Political Celebrity 161
   Andrew Tolson

10 Winning Isn’t Everything. Selling Is: Sports, Advertising, and the Logic of the Market 177
    Ellis Cashmore

11 From Celebrity to Influencer: Tracing the Diffusion of Celebrity Value across the Data Stream 194
    Alison Hearn and Stephanie Schoenhoff

Part Four  Global Celebrity
   Introduction 213
   Sean Redmond

12 Recognition, Gratification, and Vulnerability: The Public and Private Selves of Local Celebrities 219
    Kerry O. Ferris

13 “Tweeting the Good Causes”: Social Networking and Celebrity Activism 235
    Liza Tsaliki

14 Celebrity Diplomats: Differentiation, Recognition, and Contestation 258
    Andrew F. Cooper

15 Brand Bollywood Care: Celebrity, Charity, and Vernacular Cosmopolitanism 273
    Pramod K. Nayar

Part Five  Celebrity Screens/Technologies of Celebrity
   Introduction 289
   P. David Marshall

16 Celevision: Mobilizations of the Television Screen 295
    Misha Kavka

17 Stardom, Celebrity, and the Moral Economy of Pretending 315
    Barry King
18 You May Know Me from YouTube: (Micro-)Celebrity in Social Media
Alice E. Marwick

Part Six Emotional Celebrity
Introduction
Sean Redmond

Chris Rojek

20 The Democratization of Celebrity: Mediatization, Promotion, and the Body
Olivier Driessens

21 Sensing Celebrities
Sean Redmond

Part Seven Celebrity Embodiment
Introduction
Tamara Heaney and Sean Redmond

22 The Ambivalent Irishness of Denis Leary and Kathy Griffin
Diane Negra

23 Neymar: Sport Celebrity and Performative Cultural Politics
David L. Andrews, Victor B. Lopes, and Steven J. Jackson

24 Digital Shimmer: Popular Music and the Intimate Nexus between Fan and Star
Toija Cinque

Part Eight Celebrity Identification
Introduction
P. David Marshall

Matt Hills

26 The Everyday Use of Celebrities
Joke Hermes and Jaap Kooijman

27 Exposure: The Public Self Explored
P. David Marshall

Index

Figures and Tables

Figures
4.1 Caricature of George Bryan “Beau” Brummell by Richard Dighton, 1805 61
4.2 Poster for Buffalo Bill’s Wild West and Congress of Rough Riders of the World 64
4.3 Sarah Bernhardt in costume for Théodora 65
4.4 Florence Lawrence, a motion picture player promoted through humbug 70
8.1 Subcategories of museums in Japan 137
8.2 Change in number of museums, 1987–2008 137
8.3 Types of museums 141
8.4 Number of museums by region 141
8.5 Celebrity museums in each field 142
8.6 Ando Tadao in Germany, 2004 147
9.1 Clegg Obama 174
13.1 John Legend tweets on poverty 247
13.2 Justin Bieber tweets on education 249
13.3 Barack Obama tweets on immigration reform 249
13.4 Barack Obama tweets on abortion rights 250
16.1 Kim Kardashian at the hands of the celebrity-making machine 303
16.2 Julianne Moore as Sarah Palin watches Tina Fey as Sarah Palin 307
16.3 Michelle Obama on camera being caught on camera 311
17.1 Mixed reality continuum 327
22.1 Kathy Griffin’s body is designated a crime scene 414
24.1 Lead singer of Little Dragon, Yukimi, seen sitting in her home/studio 450
24.2 Fans are invited to send Little Dragon their landline or cellphone number 451
27.1 Hair dye models’ idealized selfie-like poses on supermarket shelves 508
27.2 The celebrity magazine rack: out of control 511
27.3 The chaos aesthetic of the celebrity magazine cover 512
List of Figures and Tables

Tables

9.1 Use of address terms and cutaways across three debates in the 2010 UK general election campaign 170
12.1 Proportions of television anchors interviewed by type and gender 222
13.1 Mapping of overall Twitter performance, October 24–November 15, 2013 245
13.2 Interaction with followers as between celebrity politicians and politicized celebrities 246
13.3 Impact of celebrity activist twittering per cause 248
13.4 Most popular celebrity tweet 251
17.1 Modes of being 320
17.2 Grammar of identity 321
Notes on Contributors

David L. Andrews is a Professor of Physical Cultural Studies in the Department of Kinesiology at the University of Maryland School of Public Health. He has published widely on themes related to the cultural politics of sport and physical culture.

Ellis Cashmore is the author of Celebrity Culture, Tyson: Nurture of the Beast, Beckham, and Martin Scorsese’s America. He has held positions in sociology at the universities of Hong Kong; Tampa, Florida; Aston (UK); and Staffordshire (UK).

Andrew F. Cooper is Professor, Balsillie School of International Affairs and Department of Political Science, University of Waterloo, in Ontario. In 2009 he was a Fulbright Research Chair, Center on Public Diplomacy, University of Southern California. Among his books as co-editor is the Oxford Handbook of Modern Diplomacy (2013), and as author, Celebrity Diplomacy (2008) and Diplomatic Afterlives (2014).

Nick Couldry is a sociologist of media and culture. He is Professor of Media, Communications and Social Theory at the London School of Economics and the author or editor of 11 books, including Ethics of Media (2013), Media, Society, World (2012) and Why Voice Matters (2010).

Olivier Driessens is a Fellow in the Media and Communications Department of the London School of Economics and Political Science. His research interests include promotional culture, celebrity culture, and mediatization studies. His work has been published in journals such as Theory and Society, Media, Culture and Society, and Celebrity Studies.
Kerry O. Ferris, Associate Professor of Sociology at Northern Illinois University, is working toward an empirically grounded sociology of celebrity using ethnographic methods and a symbolic interactionist approach. Past studies have included analyses of fan–celebrity relations, celebrity sightings, celebrity stalking, red-carpet celebrity interviews, and the work lives of professional celebrity impersonators.

Loren Glass is Professor of English at the University of Iowa. His books include Authors Inc.: Literary Celebrity in the Modern United States (2004), Counter-culture Colophon: Grove Press, the Evergreen Review, and the Incorporation of the Avant-Garde (2013), and, with Charles Williams, Obscenity and the Limits of Liberalism (2011).

Tamara Heaney is a PhD candidate and research assistant at Deakin University, Australia. Her research investigates the role of celebrity in the lives of women in their forties. She is also interested in the representation of women in popular culture, feminist scholarship, and female aging.

Alison Hearn is an Associate Professor in the Faculty of Information and Media Studies at the University of Western Ontario in Canada.

Joke Hermes is Professor of Media, Culture and Society at Inholland University of Applied Sciences, the Netherlands. As audience researcher she is interested in everyday media use, feminism, and popular culture. She is one of the founding editors of the European Journal of Cultural Studies.

Matt Hills is Professor of Film and TV Studies at Aberystwyth University, Wales. He is the author of five books, including Fan Cultures (2002), and is also the editor of New Dimensions of Doctor Who (2013). Matt Hills has published widely on cult media and fandom.

Fred Inglis is Professor Emeritus at the University of Sheffield and Honorary Professor of Cultural History at the University of Warwick, UK. He has been three times member of the Princeton Institute of Advanced Studies, as well as Visiting Professor in a variety of countries. His books include interviews with and biographies of celebrated public figures intrinsic to the subject in hand: George Kennan, Willy Brandt and others in The Cruel Peace, his history of the Cold War, and such giants of the news pages as Walter Cronkite, Martha Gellhorn, Bob Woodward, and Ben Bradlee in People’s Witness, his history of political journalism. His book A Short History of Celebrity applies itself to the many uses of the term, the countless differences in its application, and the sheer length of its history from the mid-eighteenth century up to the present day.

Saeko Ishita is a Professor in the Department of Sociology, Graduate School of Literature and Human Sciences, Osaka City University. Her main publication is Yomeisei to iu Bunka Sochi (Celebrity as Cultural Apparatus) (1998). Her research interests include television cultures (television archives), visual sociology, and contemporary cultural studies.

Steven J. Jackson is a Professor in the School of Physical Education, Sport and Exercise Sciences at the University of Otago, New Zealand and Visiting Professor at the University of Johannesburg, South Africa. Past-President of the International Sociology of Sport Association, he focuses in his research on globalization, media, and national identity.

Douglas Kellner is George Kneller Chair in the Philosophy of Education at the University of California at Los Angeles, and is author of many books on social theory, politics, history, and culture. His latest books include Cinema Wars: Hollywood Film and Politics in the Bush/Cheney Era (2010) and Media Spectacle and Insurrection 2011: From the Arab Uprisings to Occupy Everywhere (2012).

Barry King is Professor of Communications at Auckland University of Technology. His most recent book is Taking Fame to Market: Essays on the Prehistory and Post-History of Hollywood Stardom (2014), and he is editor (with Harriet Margolies, Sean Cubitt, and Thierry Jutel) of Studying the Event Film: The Lord of the Rings (2008). He has also published a substantial number of articles that explore the relationships between popular culture, celebrity and stardom and digital media, as well as works focusing on creative labor, semiotic determinism, the sociology of acting and performance, and the New Zealand cultural industries.

Jaap Kooijman is Associate Professor of Media Studies and American Studies at the University of Amsterdam, the Netherlands. His research focuses on the global mediation of American pop culture and its intertwining with politics. He is one of the founding editors of NECSUS: European Journal of Media Studies.

Victor B. Lopes is a Master’s degree candidate in physical cultural studies in the Department of Kinesiology at the University of Maryland School of Public Health, and holds a BSc in Business Administration with an extension in Sports Marketing Management from the Pontifical Catholic University of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. His research interests include sport development policies; globalization and sport culture; and physical cultural studies in Brazilian society.
P. David Marshall is a Professor and holds a Personal Chair in New Media, Communication and Cultural Studies at Deakin University, Australia. He is the author or editor of many books related to celebrity culture and online culture, including Celebrity and Power (2nd edn, 2014), Celebrity Culture Reader (2006) and New Media Cultures (2004). His current research focuses on persona studies and includes two forthcoming books: Persona Studies: Celebrity, Identity and the Transformation of the Public Self and Promotional Vistas.

Alice E. Marwick is Assistant Professor of Communication and Media Studies and the Director of the McGannon Communication Research Center at Fordham University. Her work examines the legal, political, and social implications of popular social media technologies. She is the author of Status Update: Celebrity, Publicity and Branding in the Social Media Age (2013), an ethnography of the San Francisco tech scene which examines how people seek online status through attention and visibility.

Pramod K. Nayar is Professor, Department of English, University of Hyderabad, India. His most recent books include Citizenship and Identity in the Age of Surveillance (2015), Posthumanism (2014) and Frantz Fanon (2013). His essays on posthumanism, travel writing and postcolonial writing have appeared in the Journal of Postcolonial Writing, Journal of British Studies, Modern Fiction Studies, Celebrity Studies, South Asian Review, and elsewhere.

Diane Negra is Professor of Film Studies and Screen Culture and Head of Film Studies at University College Dublin. She is the author, editor or co-editor of nine books, including Extreme Weather and Global Media (with Julia Leyda, 2015) and serves as co-editor of the journal Television and New Media.

Sean Redmond is an Associate Professor in Media and Communication at Deakin University, Australia. He has research interests in film and television aesthetics, film and television genre, film authorship, film sound, and stardom and celebrity. He convenes the Melbourne-based Eye Tracking and the Moving Image Research group, and the Science Fiction Research group at Deakin University. He has published nine books, including The Cinema of Takeshi Kitano: Flowering Blood (2013) and Celebrity and the Media (2014). With Su Holmes, he edits the journal Celebrity Studies, short-listed for best new academic journal in 2011.

Chris Rojek is Professor of Sociology at City University, London. He is the author of 14 solo authored books, of which the most recent is Event Power (2013). His next book will be Presumed Intimacy: Para-Social Relationships in Media, Society and Celebrity Culture.

Stephanie Schoenhoff recently graduated with an Honours Specialization in Media and the Public Interest from the Faculty of Information and Media Studies at the University of Western Ontario, Canada.
Gaylyn Studlar is David May Distinguished Professor in the Humanities at Washington University in St. Louis. She is the author of Precocious Charms: Stars Performing Girlhood in Classical Hollywood Cinema; This Mad Masquerade: Stardom and Masculinity in the Jazz Age; and In The Realm of Pleasure: Von Sternberg, Dietrich, and the Masochistic Aesthetic. Her latest book is Have Gun – Will Travel (2015).

Andrew Tolson is Visiting Fellow in the Department of Media and Communication, University of Leicester, UK. He is a founder member of the Ross Priory Group for the study of broadcast talk, and is the author of Media Talk: Spoken Discourse on TV and Radio (2006).

Liza Tsaliki is Assistant Professor in the Faculty of Communications and Media Studies, National and Kapodistrian University of Athens. She is currently working on a book about the sexualization of young children for Palgrave Macmillan.

Graeme Turner is Emeritus Professor in Cultural Studies in the Centre for Critical and Cultural Studies at the University of Queensland. His many books and articles on media, popular culture, cultural studies and celebrity include the recently revised second edition of his Understanding Celebrity.
Acknowledgments

We would like to thank Julia Kirk and Jayne Fargnoli at Wiley for their tremendous support for this project and for navigating us through the various iterations of the volume. Tamara Heaney has been an invaluable research assistant on the project, a good friend and colleague, and has contributed to its thinking and shaping. To all our contributors we express heartfelt thanks for the brilliant work you have given us for inclusion in this volume.

David: The book has been an interesting journey that has not only been shared by my co-editor and the wonderfully engaged contributors, but also to lesser and greater degrees by many of my research colleagues at Deakin University. I want to thank all the members of the Persona Celebrity Publics Research Group for their support and their engaged inquiry in our many meetings and discussions over the last two years. They have provided the intellectual environment that allows this kind of scholarship to flourish. In particular, I would like to thank Chris Moore, Kim Barbour, Katja Lee, Aurore Fossard, Praba Bangaroo, Kristin Demetrious, Neil Henderson, and Glenn D’Cruz: you have all been exemplary colleagues whose spirit of collaboration, support, and assistance has been deeply appreciated and valued. I would also like to thank my family – my wife Sally, my children Erin, Julia, Zak, and Paul, as well as my mother, Theo: I want all of them to know that I appreciate their support and love when my ideas, writing, organizing and editing take me away from them and absorb my time and energy.

Sean: To everyone and anyone who has ever listened to me talk about Mickey Rourke …