Barb,

Thank you so much for your email.

All of the the research papers and articles submitted to IEEE JTEHM are peer reviewed by at two reviewers and Associate Editor under whom the review process is conducted. Based on two or more reviews, Associate Editor makes a recommendation to the Editor-in-Chief who makes the final decision on accordance, rejection, minor revision or major revision.

Please update your database accordingly that all papers are peer reviewed.

I am copying this email to our Managing Director, Ms Kara McArthur to follow up with you for any additional information that you may need.

Thank you.

Atam Dhawan, PhD
Co-Editor-in-Chief, JTEHM

Hi

I work at Deakin University and assist in processing our Faculty's publications. I would like to know whether the articles in the following journal are subjected to a peer review process. Our normal checking mechanism lists do not state that this journal's publications are peer reviewed.

Journal title: IEEE Journal of Translational Engineering in Health and Medicine
ISSN: 2168-2372
Publisher: IEEE
Paper title: Monitoring and analysis of respiratory patterns using microwave doppler radar
Article no: 1800912
Vol: 2
Pages: 1-12
Authors: Lee Yee Siong, Pathirana P., Steinfort C.L., Caelli Terry

If the articles are peer reviewed, can you advise the specific process including one of the following?

1. All articles are subjected to a peer review process
2. Only selected articles are subjected to a peer review process
3. Only abstracts are peer reviewed
4. No articles are peer reviewed

Thank you for your assistance.

Regards

Barb Robertson
